SUMMARY

Introduction

The Government of Canada has committed to legalize, regulate, and restrict access to cannabis to keep it out of the hands of children, and the profits out of the hands of criminals. There is a need for the Government of Canada to learn more about the public's awareness, knowledge, attitudes, and behaviours with respect to risks and penalties associated with drug-impaired driving. Of particular interest to the government are younger Canadians, among whom marijuana use is more prevalent. The need to explore this area of public opinion is spurred by the impending move to legalize marijuana in 2018, but also to regulate and restrict access to its use.

Background

Public Safety Canada's mandate is to keep Canadians safe from a range of risks, including drug-impaired driving. Research has shown that many Canadians are concerned about drug-impaired drivers on public roads, and that many cannabis users – particularly younger users – are not aware it impairs driving, underestimating the risk. The Department has therefore been mandated to deliver a public awareness campaign to inform Canadians of the dangers and risks associated with drug-impaired driving in light of its impending legalization. Specifically, this national marketing and advertising campaign was designed to increase public awareness of the dangers and risks associated with drug-impaired driving, even as its legal status changes. The campaign was launched in 2017, continuing in intervals throughout 2018, including multimedia advertising.

As the Drug Impaired Driving Campaign exceeds $1,000,000, public opinion research is required by the Treasury Board Secretariat using the Advertising Campaign Evaluation Tool in two phases; a benchmarking phase prior to the campaign, and a post-campaign phase. Data collection to evaluate the advertising campaign supports the Government of Canada's goal of effectively gauging Canadians' awareness and knowledge of the dangers of drug-impaired driving, and determining the effectiveness of these campaign tools in influencing Canadians' knowledge and behaviour. Information gathered from this process will provide Public Safety Canada with concrete data that will assist in developing/adjusting future media strategies.

Research Purpose

Specifically, the purpose of the quantitative baseline and post-testing was to jointly evaluate the Drug Impaired Driving campaign and to gauge:

- Unaided and aided recall of the campaign and of key messages;
- Canadians' awareness/knowledge of the campaign as seen on television, web and social media;
- Understanding of the messaging and performance in increasing awareness of the dangers of drug impaired driving, particularly for teens and young adults who may not fully understand the risks;
- Campaign effectiveness in promoting personal relevance (i.e., connecting to an individuals' life experiences designed to increase motivation to learn more, as well as engagement and knowledge in the topic, and general recall of the message) among Canadians.

Information obtained through this public opinion research can be extrapolated to the wider population of Canadians as the sample was provided from a randomly recruited survey panel. This allows Public Safety Canada to determine the impact of its advertising campaign and provide direction on areas where the campaign can be adjusted to reach a broader Canadian public. The findings provide useful information to improve future campaigns which are better targeted, more informative and better geared to the target population and Canadians at large.

Sample design

Two bilingual, national online surveys were conducted: one as a baseline, in advance of the campaign, and one following the end of the campaign to measure change in awareness and intent to visit over time, to assess impact of the campaign. The baseline included 2,035 Canadians 16 years of age or older, and the post campaign sample also included 2,035 Canadians, also 16 years of age or older. In each sample, 500 cases were completed across the two target groups (i.e., 300 with youth and 200 with parents of youth in each of the pre- and post-campaign surveys.) Each survey instrument was based on the Advertising Campaign Evaluation Tool questions used by the Government of Canada in all of its advertising evaluation research, adding a few questions testing the impact on knowledge, perceptions and behaviour targeted through the campaign. Each survey instrument included a sample of randomly selected respondents from all provinces and territories. Each survey sample relied on EKOS' Probit panel, which is assembled using a random digit dial process for sampling from a blended land-line cell-phone frame, and provides full coverage of Canadians with telephone access. The distribution of the recruitment process is meant to mirror the actual population in Canada (as defined by Statistics Canada). As such, our more than 90,000 member panel can be considered representative of the general public in Canada (meaning that the incidence of a given target population within our panel closely resembles the public at large) and margins of error can be applied.

The contract value for the POR project is $49,657.85 (including HST).

APPENDIX A

METHODOLOGY

APPENDIX A: Methodology

Each survey instrument consisted of the Advertising Campaign Evaluation Tool questions used by the Government of Canada in all of its advertising evaluation research. The post-campaign survey added questions testing recall of one video key to the campaign, along with questions testing the impact of the video on perceptions and behaviour. The average time it took respondents to complete the questionnaire was seven minutes for the baseline, and 11 minutes for the post-campaign survey. No testing was conducted given the baseline and post-campaign questionnaires were virtually identical to the instruments used previously, with very minor wording changes.

In each case, respondents to the online survey were 16 years of age and older, and were randomly selected. The sample included all provinces and territories, and the survey was administered in English and French, as well as with an accessible link for those using a mobile phone or screen reading technology. The survey sample relied on an Ekos' Probit panel, which is assembled using a random digit dial process for sampling from a blended land-line cell-phone frame, and provides full coverage of Canadians with telephone access. The distribution of the recruitment process is meant to mirror the actual population in Canada (as defined by Statistics Canada). As such, our more than 90,000 member panel can be considered representative of the general public in Canada (meaning that the incidence of a given target population within our panel very closely resembles the public at large) and margins of error can be applied. All households/individuals in the Probit panel are contacted by telephone and the nature of the panel is explained in greater detail (as are our privacy policies) and demographic information is collected. At this time the online/off-line as well as landline/cell phone status is ascertained in order to determine the method of completing surveys (i.e., online, telephone, or mail). This variable of 'type of telephone service' (cell phone only, landline only or both) collected at the time of screening is used to determine cell phone only sample. As with any random digit dialling sample, Probit panel cases are considered to be a probability-based sample.

In each survey, the number of total completed in the sample was 2,035, with an associated margin of error of up to plus or minus 2.2%, at a .05 confidence interval (i.e., 19 times out of 20). The baseline survey was collected between September 6 and 19. The post-campaign survey was collected between October 17 and 30.

The regional distribution of the sample is as follows:

| Province/Region         | Baseline    | Post-Campaign |
|-------------------------|-------------|---------------|
| British Columbia        | 249         | 272           |
| Alberta                 | 196         | 229           |
| Manitoba & Saskatchewan | 114         | 124           |
| Ontario                 | 664         | 776           |
| Quebec                  | 417         | 470           |
| Atlantic                | 120         | 159           |
| Territories             | 3           | 5             |
| Total                   | 2035 | 2035   |

Survey data collection adhered to Government of Canada standard for public opinion research as well as all applicable industry standards. EKOS informed respondents of their rights under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act, and ensured that those rights were protected throughout the research process. This included: informing respondents of the purpose of the research; identifying both the sponsoring department and the research supplier; informing respondents that their participation in the study is voluntary, and that the information provided would be administered according to the requirements of the Privacy Act.

Once the survey data was collected, each database was reviewed for data quality. Coding was also completed. Survey results were weighted based on Statistics Canada data according to age, gender, education and region to ensure the sample was representative of the general public aged 16 years and older.

Data tables were created for each survey to isolate results for major subgroups to be used in the analysis (e.g., results for each age segment, gender, and region).

Response Rates and Non-Response Bias

The response rate for the online baseline survey was 16.5%, using a formula developed by the Marketing Research Intelligence Agency in conjunction with the Government of Canada. A total of 15,248 email invitations were sent, of which 50 were returned as undeliverable. A total of 2,035 valid cases were completed, and combined with another 487 respondents who were screened out of the survey due to their responses as the numerator in the calculation of the response rate.

For the post-campaign online survey, the response rate was 13.3%, using the same formula. This includes 18,590 email invitations sent, of which 49 were returned as undeliverable. The 2,035 valid cases completed are combined with another 439 respondents who were screened out of the survey due to their responses to form the numerator in the calculation.

A comparison of each unweighted sample with 2016 Census figures from Statistics Canada suggests that there are similar sources of systematic sample bias in each survey, following patterns typically found in most general public surveys. There is a more educated sample in each survey than found in the population with 51% reporting university degrees in the baseline and 53% in the post-campaign compared with 23% in the population. There is also an under representation of Canadians born outside of Canada in each survey (13% in the baseline and 12% in the post-campaign versus 22.3%). As previously described, each sample was weighted by age, gender, education and region.
