

Send us your regrets

"Experience," Oscar Wilde wrote, "is the name everyone gives to their mistakes." So let us have the benefit. Why not write about the things you've learned the hard way in medicine? How would you replay the scenes that weren't in the script? We welcome submissions of unpublished poetry, memoir and fiction for The Left Atrium. The writing should be candid, but patient confidentiality must be respected. A sense of humour never hurts, and anonymity is optional. In general, prose manuscripts should be limited to 1000 words and poems to 75 lines. We won't launder the truth, but neither will we hang you out to dry. Send us your regrets at todkia@cma.ca
