

The ability to heal has been associated with divinity since antiquity; it is interesting that today's healing arts are founded on advances in epidemiology, bacteriology and clinical practice made in an era when Darwin, Nietzsche and Marx were, in their different ways, committing deicide.