

Bibliography of Oral History Sources

Wilma MacDonald

Introduction

During my twelve years of research into the topic of oral history and archives I've accumulated an eclectic bibliography of "how to do" oral history manuals, conference proceedings, "show and tell" descriptive articles and works affirming the value of oral history, in addition to the more functional archival works related to oral history materials and the problems associated with handling this media type. I hope you will find this bibliography covering the period from the 1970s to the early 1990s helpful. It includes separate sections on copyright/legal issues, guides/manuals on oral history methodology, directories and inventories of oral history collections, bibliographies and, finally, book reviews. However, some subject areas are more current than others.

My bibliography represents an English language bias and begs to be supplemented by bibliographic information to reflect the diverse linguistic groups and the multidisciplinary nature of oral history in Canada. This bibliography will complement my article entitled "The Origins of Oral History Programmes in the United States, Great Britain and Canada: A Comparison" published in the Canadian Oral History Association Journal 10 (1990): 12-24.

Bibliographies on Oral History

Darnay, Brigitte T., and Janice A. DeMaggio, eds.; Debra M. Kirby, assoc. ed. Directory of Special Libraries and Information Centers, 13th ed. Detroit, New York, Fort Lauderdale, London: Gale Research Inc., 1990. A Guide to More than 19,000 Special Libraries, Research Libraries, Information Centers, Archives, and Data Centers Maintained by Government Agencies, Business, Industry, Newspapers, Educational Institutions, Nonprofit Organizations, and Societies in the Fields of Science and Engineering, Medicine, Law, Art, Religion, the Social Sciences, and Humanities.

In Volume 1, Part 1, under "Special Libraries, United States and Canada, A-N, the entry for the National Archives of Canada, Moving Image & Sound Archives, is listed, but there is no reference to oral history tapes or sound recordings (238). Likewise the entry for the Canadian Museum of Civilization Library (240). The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Radio Program Archives, states that its holdings of 8,252 magnetic tapes are open to contracted institutions, graduate students, and serious scholars, when material is not available elsewhere (250). The Columbia University, Oral History Collection entry provides a considerable amount of information on its holdings including themes and transcripts, such as 4800 vols. of edited transcripts; microforms of one third of the collection; supporting papers; data on other oral history holdings and centers worldwide (346). The Library of Congress, American Folklife Center, Archive of Folk Culture entry is similarly descriptive and holds 35,000 hours of unpublished field recordings; 9000 cylinder recordings; 14,000 disc recordings; and 14,000 tape recordings (772).
