PREFACE

The current pandemic has impacted all aspects of our current lives, private and professional. Uncharacteristically, Teiresias is not providing archaeological reports this year, as field work was made largely impossible. As Prof. John Bintliff kindly reports, “Owing to the Pandemic, the Boeotia Project did not undertake a study season or fieldwork in 2020. However, the team was busy preparing the Project volume 3, which will go to press in 2021: The Greek City State on a Small Scale: Hyettos in Boeotia and its Territory, edited by John Bintliff, Emeri Farinetti and Anthony Snodgrass, University of Cambridge, McDonald Monographs. In 2021 we shall prepare volume 4, Askra and the Valley of the Muses, for publication”.

Additionally, with limited access to libraries, this issue of Teiresias was – again – almost entirely compiled with electronic resources, and offprints kindly sent by our readers. We are extremely grateful to everyone who sends their publications, and are happy to add links to open access publications, including links to institutional repositories. We also apologise for a slightly slimmer issue than usual, and for any missing references. We hope 2021 will provide more favourable circumstances for us all.
