

Olga Bagdasaryan — Candidate of Philology, Docent of the Department of Modern Russian Literature of the Ural State Pedagogical University (Yekaterinburg, Russia).

Nina Barkovskaya lives in Yekaterinburg, Russia. At 1996, she defended her doctoral dissertation, "The Poetics of the Symbolist novel". Since 1981, she has been working in the Ural State Pedagogical University, and currently is professor and head of the Chair of Modern Russian Literature. She is editor-in-chief of the series "Russian literature XX—XXI centuries: trends and movements" and "Draft: Young Philology" of "Urals Philological Bulletin", and a member of the editorial board of the journal "Philology class". Her research interests are Russian literature of edging XIX—XX centuries, the literature of "first wave" emigration, modern Russian poetry. She is author of several textbooks and more than 200 scientific publications.

Dagne Berzhaite, Assoc. Professor, Department of Russian Philology, Vilnius University, Lithuania. PhD in philology (1991, Moscow State University), thesis theme: «Творчество Ф. М. Достоевского в оценках русской литературной критики конца XIX — начала XX вв.» ("Works of F. Dostoevsky in the late 19th — early 20th century literary criticism").

Nikita Bystrov is a candidate of philosophical sciences; currently he is associate professor at the Chair of Ethics, Aesthetics Theory and History of Culture at the Department of Philosophy of the Ural State University, Yekaterinburg. His fields of research interest are: aesthetics and poetics of Russian symbolism, Russian religious aesthetics, ontological problems of different individual "poetic worlds".

Dechka Chavdarova — professor of Russian Literature at Shumen University "Konstantin Preslavski". Scholarly subject area: narratology, poetic of the Russian literature, intertextuality, thematology, national concepts in the Russian literature, intercultural communication. Books: Homo legens в русской литературе XIX века. Шумен, „Аксиос“ 1997; Проблеми на межкултурния диалог в руската литература на XIX век. [Problems of the intercultural communication in the 19th century Russian literature] Университетско издателство „Епископ Константин Преславски“. Шумен 2007; Rus(oist)кият идеал. Понятието естественост и автопортретът на руснака в руската литература на XIX век [The R(o)us(eau/sia)n ideal. The concept of naturalness and the Russian autoportrait in the 19th century Russian literature]. Велико Търново, „Фабер“, 2009; Храната/трапезата в руската литература (XVIII-началото на XX век). Метафора и изобразена реалност [Food/table in Russian literature (18th — early 20th c.). A metaphor and a depicted reality]. Series Akademica 1. Факултет по хуманитарни науки. Шуменски университет „Епископ Константин Преславски“. Шумен, 2010.

Olga Cherkezova, doctoral candidate of Department of Russian literature of the Ural Federal University. Dissertation: "The Lyric author's consciousness in the genre of the novel Pushkin's" Eugene Onegin" (1991). From 1991 till 2011 she worked at the Ekaterinburg State Theater Institute. Sphere of scholarly interests: history of Russian romanticism, history of Russian novel, theatrical and film reception of Russian classics.

Dmitry Dolgushin, candidate of philological sciences, docent of the department of Russian literature of the XIX—XX centuries at Novosibirsk State University, priest of the All Saints of Russia church at Akademgorodok, Novosibirsk, is the author and co-author of the books: «Новый Завет Господа нашего Иисуса Христа. Перевод В. А. Жуковского» (S.-Petersburg, 2008, in co-authorship with F. Z. Kanunova and I. A. Auzikova), «В. А. Жуковский и И. В. Киреевский: из истории религиозных исканий русского романтизма» ("V. A. Zhukovskij and I. V. Kireevskij: from the history of religious searches of the Russian romanticism", Moscow, 2009), «Религиозно-философская культура России (пособие для студентов вузов нефилософских специальностей). Ч. 1, 2» ("Religious-philosophical culture of Russia (a guidebook for university students from non-philosophical specialties): Part 1, 2", Novosibirsk, 2011, in co-authorship with D. A. Tsyplakov), as well as of papers on the history of Russian literature.

Tomáš Glanc, since 2010 invited professor at Humboldt University in Berlin, docent of Charles University in Prague, where in 2000—2003 he headed the Institute of Slavic Studies and Eastern Europe.

Larisa Kislova, candidate of philological sciences, associate professor at the chair of Russian literature of the Institute of Philology and Journalism of the Tyumen state University. In 1997 she defended her thesis «Динамика прозы Б. Пильняка» ("Dynamics of B. Pilnyak's fiction"). Her scientific interests are focused on modern Russian literature, «new drama» of the turn of 20th—21st centuries.

Tatiana Kruglova is a doctor (DSc) of philosophy, professor of the chair of aesthetics at the Department of Philosophy of the Ural Federal University named after B. N. Eltsin, Ekaterinburg. She is the author of over 90 articles devoted to aesthetics and poetics of socialist realism, to communicative processes in soviet artistic communities, to cultural-anthropological projections of soviet art, to artistic representations of processes of socialist modernization, as well as to problems of structure of the field of art under totalitarian condition, of a continuity between soviet and post-soviet habitus represented in art, culture and everyday life.

Olga Kryukova, PhD and DSc holder is a professor and the head of Department of Literary Arts (Кафедра словесных искусств) at the Faculty of Arts, Lomonosov Moscow State University. The theme of her PhD (“candidate of sciences”) thesis (1997) was «Творчество В. Я. Кокосова в контексте русской литературы конца XIX — начала XX века» (The works of V. Kokosov in the context of late 19th — early 20th century Russian literature) and the theme of her DSc thesis (2007) — «Архетипический образ Италии в русской литературе XIX века» (The archetypal image of Italy in the 19th century Russian literature). She is the author of more than 60 scholarly works <http://istina.imec.msu.ru/profile/Krukova>.

Maria Litovskaya — Doctor of Philology (2000); Professor, Chair of Russian Literature of the 20th–21st centuries in Ural Federal University; senior research fellow, Institute of History and Archaeology, Ural branch of Russian Academy of Science. Her main interests are connected with the history of Russian literature of the Soviet and post-Soviet periods. She is the author of the book ‘Phoenix Sings before the Sun: Valentin Kataev’s Phenomenon’ (1999); co-author of the book ‘Mass Literature Today’ (2009, 2010); author to more than 100 articles on history of Russian literature of XX century and on contemporary literature; compiling-editor of the collections of articles ‘Russian woman’ (1998, 1999, 2000, 2001), ‘Boys and Girls: realiae of socialisation’ (2004), anthology ‘Children reading’ (2012), ‘Bazhov Encyclopaedia’ (2007), chrestomathy on Russian literature (‘Schoolchildren’s Library’, ‘Literature of the Urals’ etc.). Laureate of Russian National literary prize n. a. P. P. Bazhov (2007).

Lyudmila Lutsevich — Professor at the Institute of Russian Studies and Institute of Anthropocentric Linguistics and Culturology of the University of Warsaw; the author of more than 180 scientific publications, including nine books: six monographs devoted mainly to the Russian poetry of the XVII-XXI centuries and two teacher’s books. The monographs include: “Psaltir’ v russkoy poezii” [English: The Psalm Book in Russian Poetry] (2002); “Russkaya psaltirnaya poeziya XVIII veka” [English: Russian Psalms Poetry in the XVII century] (2004); “Pamyat’ o psalmie: sacrum/profanum v sovremennoy russkoy poezii” [English: A Memory of Psalms: Sacrum/Profanum in the Modern Russian Poetry] (2009), etc. The titles of the teacher’s books are: “Serebryaniy vek russkoy poezii” [English: The Silver Age of the Russian Literature] (1994), “Stikhi moi spokojno rasskazhite pro zhizn’ moyu”: Sergei Yesenin [English: My Poems Will Tell about My Life: Sergei Yesenin] (1995). She is also the author of the historical manuscript of the XVIII century: F.I. Dmitriev-Mamonov. “Psaltir’ perelozhennaya na ody” [English: The Psalms Put Into the Odes] (2006). The scientific sphere of interests of Lyudmila Lutsevich: The Russian classic books; Literature process of the Silver Age; Sacrum in the Russian literature; Psalm book as an inspiration for poetry; Russian autobiographical prose (diaries, memoirs, writers’ authentic confessional prose); Russian religious philosophy; Anthropology of the Russian culture.

Yordan Lyutskanov, PhD, researcher at the Institute for Literature, Bulgarian Academy of Sciences, is the author of two monographs: «Дрехата на съдбата (Романът на Дмитрий Мережковски “Юлиан Отстъпника”: Анализ на клисицистичния му символизъм)» (“Fortune’s vestige (Dmitry Merezhkovsky’s novel “Julian the Apostate”: An analysis of its classicizing symbolism)”, 2008) и «(По)мислимостта на друг(ия): ранното евразийство и българските му съседни» (“The thinkability of someone/the other: early Eurasianism and its Bulgarian neighbours”, 2012). Fields of predominant interest: Russian modernism, intermediality, intercultural communication, Russian émigré culture of the 1920s–1930s, Bulgarian-Georgian(-Russian) literary contacts and parallels.

Hristo Manolakev is Associate Professor in the Department of Russian Language and Literature at St. Cyril and St. Methodius University of Veliko Turnovo. He is the author of three monographs: two in Bulgarian (Between Image and Reading: Translated Russian Fiction During the Bulgarian National Revival, Kralitsa Mab, Sofia, 1996; Text and Boundaries. A. S. Pushkin and His Povesti Belkina, A. I. Prof. Marin Drinov, Sofia, 2001) and one in Russian: Грибоедов – Гоголь – Достоевский. Типология и герменевтика Слова (Faber, Veliko Turnovo, 2011). His research interests include 19 c. Russian Literature – literary history, poetics, personalia; Russian-Bulgarian cross-literary contacts (18th–20th c.); Russian émigré literature in Bulgaria (1920–1940).

Tatiana Markova, professor, author of 3 books and about 100 articles on issues of contemporary Russian prose.

Alexander Medvedev is Associate Professor at the University of Tiumen' in Russia, working at the School of Russian Literature. He holds a doctorate (PhD, candidate of philological sciences) from Moscow State University, 1997, for his dissertation entitled «Эссе В. В. Розанов о Ф. М. Достоевском и Л. Н. Толстом (Проблема понимания)» (“Essays by V. V. Rozanov on F. M. Dostoevskii and L. N. Tolstoi (The Problem of Understanding)”). His research interests encompass Russian literature and religious-philosophical thought of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries (V. Rozanov, F. Dostoevskii, A. Chekhov, M. Prishvin, A. and M. Tsvetaeva and I. Brodskii) in the historical-cultural context of «big time». He is the author of more than 60 scholarly publications. He is the author of 30 articles in Rozanov Encyclopedia (Moscow: Russian political encyclopedia, 2008).

Tatiana Megrelishvili (DSc in philology, professor) teaches at the Georgian Technical University in Tbilisi. The scope of her research interest covers the literature of Russian romanticism and of Russian emigration; postmodernism; contemporary Russian-language literature of Georgia; psychology of artistic creativity; conceptsphere of Russian literature. She is the author of more than 120 scholarly works, three of which monographs.

Anna Men'shchikova, a master student at the Chair of 20th–21st Century Russian Literature, Department of Philology, Institute of Humanities and Arts, Ural Federal University named after the first President of Russia B. N. Yeltsin. Supervisor: DSc, prof. Tat'jana Aleksandrovna Snegirjova.

Irine Modebadze, PhD, Shota Rustaveli Institute of Georgian Literature (Tbilisi, Georgia), Scientific Department of Literary Theory and Comparativistics, Researcher. Author of over 120 published scholarly articles (published in Georgia, Russia, Azerbaijan, Germany, England, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Ukraine, Lithuania, Spain, Armenia, Greece and France). Major fields of research: Comparative Literature Studies; Georgian Literature Studies, Russian Literature Studies, Slavic Literatures, Literary and Transfers Theory, Culture Studies.

Lilia Nemchenko is associate professor at the Chair of Ethics, Aesthetics, Theory and History of Culture at the Ural Federal University, Ekaterinburg, Russia. Research interests – theoretical issues of contemporary theatre, the problem of tradition in the post-classical culture, cinema studies.

Nikolay Neychev is an associate professor in the Department of Russian Philology at the Plovdiv University. He teaches Russian classical literature. He devoted a number of literary publications in Bulgaria and abroad to the ideological poetics of Russian literature of the nineteenth century. The area of his major scientific interest comprises the problems of the Russian literary messianism, and in particular – the novels of Dostoevsky and Gogol. He is the author of two monographs: The Mysterious poetics of Dostoevsky (Fyodor Dostoevski – Tainstvennata poetika, Plovdiv, 2001), which was translated and published in Russia (Tainstvennaya poetika F. M. Dostoevskogo, Ekaterinburg, 2010), and Literature and Messianism. Russian literary messianism in the nineteenth century (Literatura i Mesianizŭm. Ruskoto literaturno mesianstvo prez 19. vek, Plovdiv, 2009).

Alexander Panov, DSc in philology, professor at the Institute for Literature at BAS, is the author of the books „Theory of literature” (1995 and 2000), „Cultural issues of the development of Bulgarian literature” (1997), „The poetry of Hristo Botev” (2012; in 2 vols.), numerous papers in theory of literature, historical poetics and literary anthropology, and of a number of textbooks and guidebooks in literature for the secondary schools.

Galina Petkova, PhD, teaches Russian 19th and 20th c. literature at the chair of Russian literature in the Faculty of Slavic philologies of the Sofia University. She has published on M. Tsvetaeva, Cherubina de Gabriak, N. Teffi, P. Bicilli, N. Trubetskoy, P. Yartsev, E. Grimm, Russian émigré community in Bulgaria. Cf. also: <http://www.slav.uni-sofia.bg/images/stories/pdf/gpetkova.pdf>

Radostin Rusev holds a PhD degree in Russian literature (1993); he is associate professor (2003) at the Institute for Literature, Bulgarian Academy of Sciences. He is specialist in poetics of Russian 20th and 21st century's literature (esp. symbolism, "village prose", postmodernism). He explores Russian-Bulgarian literary dialogues of the 20th c., as well as the Russian émigré culture and literature in Bulgaria of the 1920s-1930s. He headed the research projects "The Russian literary emigration in Bulgaria" (2002—2007) and "The Russian literature in the Internet: texts and reading" (2007—2010).

Tatiana Rybal'chenko, candidate of philological sciences, associate professor in History of Russian Literature of the Twentieth Century, Tomsk State University (Russia).

Mikhail Timofeev holds a DSc degree in philosophy and is professor at Ivanovo State University. He is the editor in chief of the digital journal «Лабиринт. Журнал социально-гуманитарных исследований».

Marina Urtmintseva holds a DSc degree in philology, she is professor at the chair of Russian literature in the Nizhnij Novgorod State Research University "N. I. Lobachevskij". She investigates issues of history and theory of Russian 18th—20th century literature, of philological hermeneutics, of literary imagology, of interconnections between literature and painting. Author of the books «Словарь русской литературы» ("A dictionary of Russian literature") (1997), «Говорящая живопись» ("Speaking pictures") (2000), «Литературный портрет в русской литературе второй половины XIX века. Генезис. Поэтика. Жанр» ("Literary portrait in the Russian literature from the 2nd half of the 19th c. Genesis. Poetics. Genre") (2005), «Искусство видеть. Поэзия и поэтика портрета в литературе и живописи» ("The art of seeing. Poetry and poetics of portrait in literature and painting") (2012).