

As each of us steps up to the fact that humanity has become the primary force setting conditions for life on earth,
it is crucial to understand what, exactly, we are creating.

It's time for a new kind of news journalism.

Presenting online news inquiries and a newsprint journal with lead and network contributors.

The Institute for Inquiry (IFI), a 501c3 non-profit organization, proposes a new generation of journalism that forefronts physical, biological, and cultural life as the realities most at stake and least understood. Please sign up for our e-newsletter — and tell others about IFI.

We are also pleased to announce that a number of essays and interviews from past issues of Wild Duck Review are now available as pdfs at www.instituteforinquiry.org
