Introduction

Section 38.1 of the *Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act*ⁱ (PSDPA) requires that the Chief Human Resources Officer prepare an annual report for the President of the Treasury Board to table in Parliament. The report must provide information on activities related to the disclosures made in public sector organizations that are subject to the Act. This report, the eighth annual report under the PSDPA,ⁱⁱ covers the reporting requirements for the period of April 1, 2014, to March 31, 2015.

The PSDPA establishes procedures for handling allegations of wrongdoing and complaints of reprisal, and provides concrete support for grounding public sector culture firmly in values and ethics. For an overview of the Act and definitions of key terms used in this report, please refer to Parts E and F of the Appendix.

This report includes information on disclosures made according to internal procedures established under the Act, as reported to the Office of the Chief Human Resources Officer (OCHRO) by the senior officers for disclosure or the chief executives of public sector organizations. It does not include disclosures or reprisal complaints made to the Office of the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner of Canada, which are reported separately by the Commissioner to Parliament.

Reported Disclosure Activity

There are 146 active organizations in the federal public sector that are currently subject to the Act.¹ Of these organizations, 123 have informed OCHRO of their senior officer for disclosure appointments made under the Act. Pursuant to subsection 10(4) of the Act,ⁱⁱⁱ 23 organizations have declared that they would not establish internal disclosure procedures or appoint a senior officer for disclosure because the size of the organization made it impractical to do so.

Subsection 38.1(1) of the Act^{iv} requires chief executives to prepare a report on the activities related to disclosures made in their organizations and to submit it to the Chief Human Resources Officer within 60 days after the end of every fiscal year. The following is a summary of these reports. Statistics from previous years are included for comparison.

1. This figure does not include the three organizations excluded from the definition of “public sector” in the Act (the Canadian Armed Forces, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, and Communications Security Establishment Canada) or the organization that requires an order-in-council to become subject to the Act (the Canada Pension Plan Investment Board).

* These figures have been amended to reflect that a file received in 2013–14 by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP), initially identified as including 1 disclosure, was further determined to include 13 disclosures. As a result of this determination, amendments have been made to the 2013–14 figures corresponding to “Number of disclosures received under the Act,” “Total number of disclosures handled” and “Number of disclosures received that were acted upon.” The numbers that appear in the column for 2014–15 have been adjusted to reflect this information.

In accordance with paragraph 11\(1\)\(c\) of the Act,^v it is the responsibility of organizations to provide public access to information describing findings of wrongdoing and any follow-up action taken. Consequently, OCHRO does not collect or report on the specifics of findings of wrongdoing by organizations.

Statistics on reports of organizational activities related to disclosures made under the Act are available in Part A of the Appendix. These statistics provide a useful snapshot of activity under the PSDPA. The following points should be noted:

- 4 It is difficult to compare statistics across organizations because their cultures vary. Issues may be dealt with through different mechanisms in different organizations.
- 4 Sometimes a disclosure will contain several allegations of wrongdoing. When filling out their annual report under the PSDPA, organizations are asked to count each allegation as a separate disclosure and report it as such in their submission to OCHRO. As a result, the report captures the number of potential incidents of wrongdoing to be investigated, which is a higher number than that of public servants making disclosures.
- 4 Cases identified through disclosure may be followed up on through another process, such as a grievance procedure.
- 4 The following are the most common reasons provided by organizations for not acting upon disclosures:
 - The individual making the disclosure was referred to another, more appropriate, recourse mechanism because of the nature of the allegation(s); and
 - The disclosure did not meet the definition of wrongdoing under section 8 of the Act.^{vi}
- 4 Disclosures can be made to a supervisor, a senior officer for disclosure or the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner. The choice of a particular channel for disclosure cannot be construed as a reflection of a lack of trust in other channels.
- 4 Given that an anonymous disclosure does not meet the definition of a “disclosure made under the Act,” this report does not include situations where information about a possible wrongdoing is provided anonymously.²
- 4 Although the Canadian Armed Forces (CAF), the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Communications Security Establishment Canada (CSEC) are excluded from the PSDPA, under section 52^{vii} they are required to establish procedures applicable to their organization for the disclosure of wrongdoing, including the protection of persons who disclose wrongdoing. These procedures must, in the opinion of the Treasury Board, be similar to those set out in the PSDPA. CSIS procedures were approved in December 2009, CSEC’s procedures were approved in June 2011, and the CAF’s procedures were approved in April 2012.

2. To trigger the protections of the Act, a public servant must be identifiable as the source of the disclosure or be involved in a disclosure investigation.

E. Overview of the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act

Introduction

Section 38.1 of the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act^{viii} (PSDPA) requires that the President of the Treasury Board annually table the following information in Parliament for the activities respecting disclosures made in public sector organizations that are subject to the Act:

- 4 Number of general inquiries relating to the Act;
- 4 Number of disclosures received under the Act, and whether they were acted upon;
- 4 Number of investigations commenced;
- 4 Whether any systemic problems were found that led to wrongdoing; and
- 4 Any other matter that the Chief Human Resources Officer deems necessary.

Outline of the Act

The PSDPA encourages employees in the public sector to come forward if they have reason to believe that serious wrongdoing has taken place, and it provides protections for employees against reprisal when they do so.

The Act allows any person to provide the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner with information about possible wrongdoing in the public sector. It also allows employees to make disclosures to their supervisors or to the senior officer for disclosure designated for their organization. The Act created the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Tribunal to address alleged cases of reprisal.

Through these provisions, the PSDPA enhances the ability of organizations to identify and resolve incidents of wrongdoing, while supporting employees who disclose wrongdoing and protecting them from reprisal.

The PSDPA requires allegations of wrongdoing to be treated with an appropriate degree of confidentiality. Organizations must protect any information they collect about disclosures, including the identities of those making disclosures and of others involved, subject to other Acts of Parliament and the principles of natural justice and procedural fairness. In this way, the PSDPA provides a fair and objective process for those against whom allegations are made.

The PSDPA amended the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act to ensure that information created for the purpose of making a disclosure, or in the course of an investigation into a disclosure or reprisal complaint, cannot be released in response to requests for information under either of those Acts. To balance these provisions with the need for transparency for public sector wrongdoings, the PSDPA requires that chief executives and the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner provide prompt public access to information that describes incidents of wrongdoing found as a result of disclosures made under the Act, and any corrective action taken as a result.

The establishment of procedures for handling alleged wrongdoing and complaints of reprisal are only one feature of the PSDPA. More broadly, the Act supports a positive public sector culture that is grounded in values and ethics. It requires that the Government of Canada establish a code of conduct applicable to the entire federal public sector, and that each public sector organization establish a code of conduct consistent with the public sector code.

The PSDPA also requires that the President of the Treasury Board promote ethical practices and a positive environment for disclosing wrongdoing in the public sector. Ultimately, the Act will help to sustain and support an ethical culture, thereby reinforcing the integrity of the federal public sector.

F. Key terms

For the purposes of the Public Servants Disclosure Protection Act^{ix} (PSDPA), and of this report, “public servant” denotes every person employed in the public sector. This includes the deputy heads and chief executives of public sector organizations, but it does not include other Governor in Council appointees (e.g., judges and boards of Crown corporations) or parliamentarians and their staff.

The PSDPA defines “wrongdoing” as any of the following actions in, or relating to, the public sector:

- 4 Violation of a federal or provincial law or regulation;
- 4 Misuse of public funds or assets;
- 4 Gross mismanagement in the public sector;
- 4 Serious breach of a code of conduct established under the Act;
- 4 Act or omission that creates a substantial and specific danger to the life, health and safety of Canadians or the environment; and
- 4 Knowingly directing or counselling a person to commit a wrongdoing.

A “protected disclosure” is a disclosure that is made in good faith by a public servant under the following conditions:

- 4 In accordance with the Act, to the public servant’s immediate supervisor, senior officer for disclosure or the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner;
- 4 In the course of a parliamentary proceeding;
- 4 In the course of a procedure established under any other Act of Parliament; or
- 4 When lawfully required to do so.

Furthermore, any person can provide information about public sector wrongdoing to the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner.

The PSDPA defines “reprisal” as any of the following measures taken against a public servant who has made a protected disclosure or who has, in good faith, cooperated in an investigation into a disclosure:

- 4 Any disciplinary measure;
- 4 Demotion of the public servant;
- 4 Termination of the employment of the public servant;
- 4 Any measure that adversely affects the employment or working conditions of the public servant; or
- 4 A threat to do any of those things or to direct a person to do them.

Each organization subject to the PSDPA is required to establish “internal procedures” to manage disclosures made in the organization. Organizations that are too small to establish their own internal procedures can request an exception under section 10\(4\) of the Act.^x In this case, disclosures related to the Act would be handled directly by the Public Sector Integrity Commissioner.

A “senior officer for disclosure” is the person appointed within each organization to receive and deal with disclosures made under the Act. Senior officers for disclosure have the following key leadership roles for implementing the Act in their organizations:

- 4 Providing information, advice and guidance to public servants regarding the organization’s internal disclosure procedures, including the making of disclosures, the conduct of investigations into disclosures, and the handling of disclosures made to supervisors;
- 4 Receiving and recording disclosures and reviewing them to establish whether there are sufficient grounds for further action under the PSDPA;
- 4 Managing investigations into disclosures, including determining whether to deal with a disclosure under the PSDPA, initiate an investigation or cease an investigation;
- 4 Coordinating handling of a disclosure with the senior officer of another federal public sector organization, if a disclosure or an investigation into a disclosure involves that other organization;
- 4 Notifying the person(s) who made a disclosure in writing of the outcome of any review or investigation into the disclosure and on the status of actions taken on the disclosure, as appropriate; and
- 4 Reporting the findings of investigations, as well as any systemic problems that may give rise to wrongdoing, directly to his or her chief executive, with recommendations for corrective action, if any.

Other Definitions

Acting upon a disclosure: Refers to taking any action to determine whether wrongdoing has occurred, including preliminary analysis, fact-finding and investigation. It also means that the determination of whether or not the wrongdoing has occurred was made during the reporting period.

Allegation of wrongdoing: Refers to the communication of a potential incident of wrongdoing through a disclosure as defined in section 8 of the PSDPA. The person must make the allegation in good faith and must have reasonable grounds to believe that the allegation is true.

Disclosure: Refers to the provision of information by a public servant to his or her immediate supervisor or to a senior officer for disclosure that includes one or more allegations of possible wrongdoing in the public sector, in accordance with section 12 of the PSDPA.

General inquiries: Refers to inquiries about procedures established under the PSDPA or about possible wrongdoings, not including actual disclosures.

Investigation: Refers to a formal investigation triggered by a disclosure.

Not acted upon: Refers to any immediate rejection of the disclosure once it is received, including an immediate referral of the employee making the disclosure to another more appropriate recourse mechanism.
