

ALL ABOUT THE CANADA POST REVIEW

The Government of Canada is undertaking an independent review of Canada Post services to ensure Canadians receive quality postal service at a reasonable price.

TWO-PHASED APPROACH

The Review is focused on understanding Canada Post services through a two-phased approach that is being conducted in an open and transparent manner.

PHASE ONE

A Task Force on the future of Canada Post services will identify:

the cost of and need for existing Canada Post services;

the current financial situation and projections;

all opportunities for Canada Post to develop new business lines; and international best practices.

The Task Force will use this information to prepare a discussion paper that will be made public and provided to a parliamentary committee.

PHASE TWO

A parliamentary committee will lead a discussion with Canadians on viable options for the future of Canada Post.

The Government will then make a decision about the future of postal service based on input from Canadians.

Canadians from coast to coast to coast will have a say in the future of their postal services.

This Review will help put Canada Post on a self-sustaining footing, while providing valuable services for Canadians well into the future.