Goods

Wine.

Territory

The entire area of the Region of Piedmont, in Italy

Qualification

`Vermouth di Torino' is well known throughout the world thanks to the tradition and history of its production in the Piedmont region since the end of the 18th century. The product originates from the region of Piedmont, specifically from Turin. In the early 1800s. `Vermouth di Torino' referred to a particular type of aromatised wine produced in Piedmont and with a unique composition and method of production. `Vermouth di Torino' became well-known in the first half of the 19th century, when worldwide exports began. This was followed by major expansion from 1880 onwards. Thanks to the great success of `Vermouth di Torino' on the international scene, distillers from Piedmont that had already been famous since the 18th century added this particular wine product to their product range. It was this success that allowed them to build their large, modern production facilities in the 19th century, which contributed significantly towards the development of Italy's wine industry in modern times. The success of `Vermouth di Torino' also boosted the development of local crops of medicinal plants from the 19th century onwards, particularly the various Artemisia species used in producing it. Many of the herbs traditionally used in the production of `Vermouth di Torino' are widely found in the Piedmont region, including the most characteristic ingredient: Artemisia absinthium (common wormwood) and/or Artemisia pontica (Roman wormwood), a medicinal plant for which Piedmont is still the main Italian producer region to this day. However, wormwood is only the most important of a wide range of herbs harvested and grown since time immemorial in Piedmont, including yarrow, chamomile, hyssop, savory, marjoram, clary sage, elder, thyme, and spices such as cinnamon, cardamom, cloves, coriander, nutmeg, vanilla, saffron and many others, which give `Vermouth di Torino' its unique aroma and taste. The product's reputation became so inextricably linked to the Piedmont region and Turin, where commercial activity of master vermouth makers developed, proliferated and over time reached significant levels of production, attesting to the important economic role which this distinctive product now plays. The combination of the ingredients and production techniques have over the years been passed down from generation to generation, with unique tastes and characteristics found in the recipes jealously guarded by each company. The processing techniques used have changed, new ones have joined older ones and this combination of the old and the new even today continues to preserve and enhance traditional production. Evidence of the success enjoyed by 'Vermouth di Torino' can be found in Italian newspapers dating back to an article published in the 'Gazzetta di Milano' on 4 May 1833. Similar reports were published outside Italy, e.g. in France (1859), Spain (1859) and the U.S. (1874). References continue to be made to this day in culinary, technical and commercial magazines, such as La Nuova Antologia (1933), Bulletin of California Agricultural Experiment Station (1941), Vignevini (2002), Bargiomale (2017), La Stampa (2017), etc. There are also references to 'Vermouth di Torino' in many books, in particular: 'Il Vermouth di Torino' by A. Strucchi (1907), 'The Vermouth of Turin' by F. Piccinino (2016) and 'Il grande libro del Vermouth di Torino' by G. Mainardi and P. Berta (2018). The product has also been mentioned in the literary works of many Italian writers, such as Edmondo De Amicis, Paolo Monelli and Cesare Pavese. Elsewhere in the world, it has also been mentioned by Henry de Kock and Leon Beauvallet (1854), Aristide Bruant (1902), Paul Cazin (1933), Alfred Hart (1987), Jean-Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge (1990) and Luke Allan (2016), to cite just a few names. 'Vermouth di Torino' has been featured at major international exhibitions and won countless prizes, which are often mentioned on labels by producers. Some of these events included: the Universal Exposition in Paris (1855), the International Exhibition in Dublin (1865), the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia (1876), the Expo in Shanghai (2010) and the Expo in Milan (2015). Even nowadays, 'Vermouth di Torino' is still a regular feature at major commercial fairs, in particular Vinitaly (Verona), the Salone del Gusto (Turin), ProWein (Düsseldorf), and often with collective stands representing dozens of different brands. The name is recognized and protected as a geographical indication in the European Union by Decree No. 1826 of March 22, 2017, of Italy's Ministry of Agricultural, Food and Forestry Policies, implementation of Article 26 of Regulation (EU) no. 251/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council, of 26 February 2014, on the definition, description, presentation, labelling and the protection of geographical indications of aromatised wine products and repealing Council Regulation (EEC) No 1601/91.
