

The voice of Canadian arts and culture for 65 years

Canadian Conference of the Arts
Conférence canadienne des arts

This is a special year for the Canadian Conference of the Arts (CCA) as it celebrates its 65th anniversary. Throughout its history, the CCA has served as a leading voice for the Canadian arts, culture and heritage community. By engaging in cultural policy research, analysis and debate, the CCA has stimulated broad interest in a diverse range of issues that affect the sector. Sixty-five years later, the CCA is still committed to bringing relevant cultural policy issues to the forefront and ensuring that the arts and culture sector continues to grow for the benefit of all Canadians. The CCA has a bright and exciting future ahead but can only continue on its journey with your help!
