

George ONSLOW (1784-1853) was a French pianist and prolific composer of operas, symphonies and other works, although these are seldom performed today. He became partially deaf in a hunting accident, which became the basis for The Bullet Quintet. He succeeded Cherubini at the Paris Conservatoire.

Click on the "◀◀" button above to return to the text.