Minister's Message

As Canada's Minister of Public Safety, I am pleased to present to Parliament the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) Report on Plans and Priorities for the 2013-14 fiscal year.

Our Government is committed to ensuring that Canadians can feel safe in their streets and communities. Part of that means ensuring our correctional system actually corrects criminal behavior. We have introduced several measures to do just that. While much focus has been put on offender accountability, we are also taking measures in the area of rehabilitation. We think it is important that prisoners learn real world skills so that they can work and contribute to society once released, often for the first time in their lives.

This report establishes the way forward for the coming fiscal year, outlining the important work that CSC does to help enhance public safety.

The Honourable Vic Toews, P.C., Q.C., M.P.
Minister of Public Safety

Section I: Departmental Overview

1.1 Raison d'être

The Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) contributes to public safety by administering court-imposed sentences for offenders sentenced to two years or more. CSC has a presence in all regions of Canada, managing institutions of various security levels and supervising offenders on different forms of conditional release, while assisting them to become law-abiding citizens. CSC also administers post-sentence supervision of offenders with Long Term Supervision Orders for up to 10 years.

Mission

The Correctional Service of Canada, as part of the criminal justice system and respecting the rule of law, contributes to public safety by actively encouraging and assisting offenders to become law-abiding citizens, while exercising reasonable, safe, secure and humane control.

Mandate

The Corrections and Conditional Release Act and related regulations provide CSC's legislative mandate for administering court-imposed sentences for offenders sentenced to a term of two years or more.

1.2 Responsibilities

CSC manages institutions for men and women, mental health treatment centres, Aboriginal healing lodges, community correctional centres, and parole offices where offenders under conditional release in the community are supervised.

CSC's daily activities and longer-term goals are all aimed at ensuring that "the custody, correctional interventions, and supervision of offenders, in communities and institutions, contribute to public safety" which is CSC's single strategic outcome. CSC is organized to provide effective correctional services in a fiscally responsible manner at the national, regional and local levels.

CSC continues to adapt to ensure it delivers the most relevant, appropriate and effective interventions to meet the needs of the growing, more complex and diverse offender population under its supervision. CSC also addresses requirements related to offender accommodation and human resources.

1.3 Organizational Information

CSC is led by its Commissioner, who reports to the Minister of Public Safety. The organizational structure of the Service reflects the work of dedicated staff in institutions, parole offices, and communities all across Canada.

CSC employs approximately 18,600 staff and strives to maintain a workforce that reflects Canadian society. CSC personnel include a rich and diverse range of professionals, many of whom have extensive expertise and experience in Corrections.

- Legal Services

About 84 percent of CSC’s workforce work in institutions or in communities, with 41 percent of staff in the Correctional Officer category and 15 percent in the Welfare Programs group that includes Parole and Program Officers.

As well, CSC relies on a variety of other skilled employees, from health professionals to electricians, to operate institutions and community offices and to provide corporate and administrative functions at the local, regional and national levels. CSC also manages regional staff training colleges, five regional headquarters and a national headquarters.

Workforce

Of the approximately 18,600 staff employed by CSC:

- 48.3 percent are women
- 7.1 percent are from visible minority groups
- 4.8 percent are persons with disabilities
- 8.4 percent are Aboriginal

1.4 Operating Environment

CSC’s responsibilities include the provision of services across the country in large urban centres with their increasingly diverse populations, in remote Inuit communities across the North, and at all points in between. CSC manages institutions for men and women, mental health treatment centres, Aboriginal healing lodges, community correctional centres and parole offices.

CSC's complex offender population creates challenges, pressures and demands in its operating environment. On an average day during the first nine months of fiscal year 2012-13, CSC was responsible for 15,033 federally incarcerated offenders and 7,726 offenders in the community for an average of 22,759 offenders per day.

CSC encourages offenders to be accountable for their behaviour and rehabilitation by delivering the most relevant, appropriate and effective programs and interventions to meet the needs of the growing, more complex and diverse federal offender population.

CSC constantly assesses and adjusts the allocation of resources to ensure they effectively and efficiently support successful offender rehabilitation. During this planning period, CSC will also be doing its part to support Canada's Economic Action Plan 2012 by reducing its operating budget by $295.4 million by April 1, 2014. CSC is implementing cost-saving measures that increase offender accountability, achieve administrative efficiencies, and streamline operations and program delivery. These and other related initiatives will better focus resources on key priorities and core mandate, while at the same time ensuring that the organization will continue to deliver strong public safety results for Canadians.

1.5 Strategic Outcome and Program Alignment Architecture (PAA)

CSC's contributions to a safe and secure Canada are well articulated in the organization's single strategic outcome: "The custody, correctional interventions, and supervision of offenders, in communities and institutions contribute to public safety".

To achieve the strategic outcome, offenders are maintained in "Custody" in institutions. Those who become eligible and are granted conditional release are transferred to the community where they are managed under "Community Supervision".¹

In both institutions and the community, offenders benefit from "Correctional Interventions" to help them change the behaviours that contributed to their criminal activity and so become law-abiding citizens.

Internal Services encompasses all activities and resources that support the organization's program needs, operations and other corporate obligations.

¹ Offenders are released according to various provisions of the Corrections and Conditional Release Act. Some offenders are released by law, whereas others are released as a result of the decision-making authority of Parole Board Canada.

1.6 Organizational Priorities

CSC’s corporate priorities continue to be rooted in the mission and mandate and serve to provide specific focus for the organization’s direction, programs and initiatives. As always, they point the organization toward continuously improving its contributions to safety in Canadian communities by helping offenders rehabilitate their lives and relationships.

These activities have been enhanced by recent legislative changes and by the work of a national and some regional victim advisory councils • Continue CSC's ongoing working relationship with police for intelligence sharing and investigations related to security threat groups

1.7 Correctional Partners

CSC recognizes and acknowledges the value of its traditional and non-traditional partners who are involved in the delivery of essential services to assist in the successful reintegration of offenders. CSC focuses on continuing to build and develop new partnerships and interconnectedness with Canadian communities.

CSC benefits from the contributions of nearly 9,000 volunteers active in institutions and in the community. They are essential contributors to public safety as they support the work of CSC staff, and the liaison between the community and the offender. CSC volunteers are involved in activities ranging from facilitating events to providing support to offenders and communities, including tutoring, social and cultural events, and faith-based services. CSC also engages volunteer Citizen Advisory Committees at the local, regional and national levels to provide citizen feedback on CSC policies and practices.

1.8 Risk Analysis

The accurate identification and effective management of risk is key to identifying corporate priorities and is fundamental to achieving expected results. Risk management is a central part of daily business at all areas of CSC's large, decentralized and complex work environment. The most senior levels of management oversee high-level risks, while medium and lower levels of risk are managed by operational managers and staff.

Challenges that impact corrections include the ever-increasing complexities in the offender profile, more offenders with extensive histories of violence and violent crimes, previous youth and adult convictions, more affiliations with gangs and organized crime, serious mental health disorders, higher rates of infection of Hepatitis C and Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), the increasing number of women offenders in federal custody, the disproportionate representation of First Nations, Métis and Inuit, and operational impacts of new legislation and government cost reduction measures. CSC continues to take proactive action to mitigate potential risks to ensure delivery of core business that contributes to public safety.

CORPORATE RISK PROFILE
CORPORATE RISKS	KEY MITIGATION STRATEGIES
1 CSC will not be able to respond to the complex and diverse offender population in a consistent and integrated way (This risk links to the priorities on safe transition, interventions for First Nations, and capacities to address mental health needs)	Further develop and implement the Population Management Strategy to appropriately respond to present and future offender population requirements
	Continue implementing the Strategic Plan for Aboriginal Corrections
	Continue to implement key aspects of the Mental Health Strategy
2 CSC will not be able to maintain required levels of operational safety and security (This risk links to the priorities on safety and security, and safe transition)	Further develop and implement the Population Management Strategy to effectively and efficiently manage the inmate population
	Maintain, evaluate, update and implement as required, emergency management plans: security, business continuity, and contingency
	Fully implement the National Gang Strategy and its ongoing revisions to address changes in security threat group dynamics and risks
3 CSC will not be able to manage significant change related to transformation, legislative changes, and reduced budgets (This risk links to the priority on effective and efficient values-based management)	Implement CSC's Strategic Plan for Human Resources Management 2012-13 to 2014-15
	Implement CSC's response to the government's Economic Action Plan 2012
	Support staff through the implementation of the Values, Integrity and Conflict Management (VICM) Five-Year Strategic Plan
4 CSC will lose support of partners who are delivering critical services and resources to released offenders (This risk links to the priority on productive relationships with partners)	Implement the Framework for Action associated with the Federal Community Correction Strategy to engage criminal justice partners and to help expand networks
	Increase use of technological communications to maintain engagement with citizen advisory groups, victim services and other partners
	Increase volunteer involvement with faith- based organizations to enhance and sustain offender support opportunities
5 CSC will not be able to sustain results related to violent re-offending (This risk links to the priorities on safe transition, and safety and security)	Implement the Federal Community Corrections Strategy
	Ensure measures are in place that strengthen offender accountability and motivate offenders to participate in their correctional plans
	Increase the number of early identifications of needs and program enrolments for violent offenders, and provide follow-up and maintenance programs

These risks guide decision-making, as well as audit, evaluation and research planning. This robust structure and integrated approach ensure that CSC is well positioned to handle any risk-related challenges that may arise, without compromising its operations or the public safety of Canadians.

1.9 Planning Summary

CSC has taken a proactive and comprehensive approach to planning for fiscal year 2013-14. As a result, it is well positioned to manage its commitment to fiscal responsibility and its contribution to the safety and security of Canadian citizens, while remaining focused on its mission, mandate, and values. CSC's plans and strategies in the coming three years are concentrated in core areas of correctional responsibility and operations, meeting its corporate priorities, entrenching and building on its transformation themes, and identifying and mitigating key areas of risk.

TRANSFORMATION THEMES

1. Enhancing offender accountability
2. Eliminating drugs in institutions
3. Enhancing correctional programs and employment skills of offenders
4. Modernizing physical infrastructure
5. Strengthening community corrections

The organization will continue to examine and adjust plans, keeping them commensurate with actual inmate population growth. CSC remains prepared to respond to any changes that may arise during this planning period.

CSC developed and will continue to implement a full range of new and/or revised correctional interventions designed to address specific criminal risk areas, increase offender accountability, and stop access to contraband, including illicit drugs, inside institutions.

Over the next three fiscal years, CSC will continue to operate a program of international development that supports Canadian foreign policy priorities and contributes to the security of Canadians and Canadian interests at home and abroad. This includes establishing bilateral relations with international jurisdictions to advance correctional reform as part of an integrated security system based on international standards and the rule of law. CSC will achieve this through focused international visits, information-sharing and technical assistance.

CSC will continue to manage the challenges associated with recruiting and retaining staff related to the government-wide ageing workforce. In addition to maintaining a fully-functioning correctional service delivery system while instituting the government's cost-saving measures, CSC is working to attract, recruit and retain the best and brightest people in order to maintain a dedicated and skilled workforce now and in the future.

Approximately 60 percent of CSC's 2013-14 Annual Reference Level³ will be dedicated to the provision of care and custody for offenders in institutions, which includes fixed and semi-fixed costs for security systems, salaries for correctional staff, facilities maintenance, health services, food services and capital. Approximately 20 percent will be allocated to correctional interventions, which includes case management and offender programs. Six percent will be dedicated to community supervision, which includes community-based residential facilities and community-based health services. The remaining 14 percent will be allocated to support enabling services and interactions.

Planning Summary Tables: Strategic Outcome and Programs

In this planning period, CSC will continue to place a high priority on measuring its performance in a meaningful way, by examining prevalent issues and efficiencies against effectiveness of outcomes.

1.11 Estimates by Vote

For information on our organizational appropriations, please see the 2013–14 Main Estimates publication.

1.12 Contribution to the Federal Sustainable Development Strategy

Although CSC is not required to be part of the Federal Sustainable Development Strategy, the organization has developed its own sustainable development strategy for 2013-14 to 2014-15, and will continue to report progress in future departmental performance reports.

1.13 Gender and Diversity-Based Analysis

Status of Women Canada presented its Gender-Based Analysis Action Plan in 2009 to the Standing Committee on Public Accounts and the Office of the Auditor General. CSC is one of the government departments participating in the third phase of the government-wide implementation of this action plan.

⁴ The only sunset initiative over this timeframe is approximately $1M for the Federal Contaminated Sites Action Plan that will end in fiscal year 2014-2015.

Since its initial presentation, this initiative has been renamed Gender-Based Analysis +; the “+” represents factors such as age, education, language, geography, culture and income.

CSC has been assessing its policies, programs and interventions using a gender, cultural and social lens for many years. This is evidenced in its targeted services to women offenders, Aboriginal and ethnocultural offenders as well as those suffering with mental health issues and various socio-economic factors.

In order to formalize a rigorous assessment process, CSC plans to include in its policy framework a gender and diversity checklist against which it will review all policies and programs. This will further enhance the Service’s interventions with offenders as well as its efforts to attract, hire and retain a workforce that is diverse and reflective of Canadian society. In doing so, CSC will contribute to this very important government-wide initiative.

Section II: Analysis of Program by Strategic Outcome

2.1 Strategic Outcome

CSC’s Strategic Outcome is: “The custody, correctional interventions, and supervision of offenders in communities and in institutions, contribute to public safety.” CSC will achieve its Strategic Outcome by implementing a full spectrum of plans and initiatives in its three operational program areas: custody, correctional interventions, community supervision, and in the organizational supporting program: internal services. CSC’s effectiveness and efficiencies in managing these areas provide the foundation for its public safety results.

2.1.1 Program 1.0: Custody

CSC provides offenders with reasonable, safe, secure and humane custody while they are serving their sentences. This program includes providing for the day-to-day needs of offenders, including health and safety, food, clothing, mental health services, and physical health care. It also includes security measures within institutions such as drug interdiction, and appropriate control practices to prevent incidents.

- Continue to implement CSC's Population Management Strategy to enhance results and accountability as its primary goals
- Improve institutional safety and security by focusing on policies and procedures at principal entrances to protect offenders, staff and members of the public
- Introduce new operational procedures to eliminate the entry of illicit materials as well as the trafficking, supply and demand for drugs and contraband in institutions to further the government's commitment to drug free penitentiaries
- Strengthen the continuum and continuity of specialized mental health support throughout the duration of offenders' sentences to address the mental health needs of the offender population

- Modernizing food services preparation and delivery
- Streamlining the procurement and lifecycle of equipment

2.1.2 Program 2.0: Correctional Interventions

CSC undertakes a comprehensive assessment of all offenders to identify their risks and needs when they enter federal custody. Based on that assessment, a correctional plan is developed for each offender through which CSC provides programs and education, as well as employment-skills training and employment opportunities in both institutions and communities to help bring positive changes in behaviour that will help offenders successfully reintegrate. These interventions serve to address and resolve problems directly related to offenders' criminal behaviour that, if not addressed, would interfere with their ability to function as law-abiding members of society. As part of its ongoing transformation effort, CSC monitors offenders' level of accountability for achieving goals set in their correctional plans.

4.2 Methodology for Performance Targets

<http://www.csc-scc.gc.ca/text/pblct/rpp/rpp2012-13/rpp-ind-eng.shtml>

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

As mandated by the Treasury Board Secretariat (as part of the Management Accountability Framework (MAF) and Management Resources and Results Structure (MRRS) policy), government departments are required to ensure that performance objectives are related to public purpose and overall government priorities and further be associated with actions to achieve results, taking into consideration both past and future realities. Performance information should facilitate comparisons with other benchmarks and industry or government norms and standards and data sources, frequency of data collection and performance targets should then be articulated for all performance indicators. This information must be clear, relevant, credible and balanced.

CSC has developed a Performance Measurement Framework (PMF) associated with the Program Alignment Architecture (PAA) that includes internal benchmarking and forecasting techniques in order to meet these requirements. Internal benchmarks are derived from 10 years of historical performance information. The methodology identifies the median or middle value of the data and sets 3 ranges of performance around this value, with 50% of the observable data associated within the middle band (or 'usual' performance zone). Data outside this band are considered either higher or lower than usual. The performance bands are color-coded for ease of interpretation, as follows:

-  - Quartile 4 (Red): Poor Performance Zone
-  - Quartile 3 (Yellow / Red Hatch): Usual Performance Zone*
-  - Quartile 2 (Yellow): Usual Performance Zone
-  - Quartile 1 (Green): Best Performance Zone

* Note: The middle performance zone incorporates quartiles 2 and 3 (or 50% of the data). While both quartiles fall within the 'usual' performance range, they are separated to delineate proximity to the poor and best performance ranges. In effect, quartile 3 serves as a sort of 'caution' zone.

REPORT ON PLANS AND PRIORITIES: BENCHMARKING AND FORECASTING METHODS

Benchmarking Techniques

The preferred method of benchmarking and the development of performance zones uses the median or middle value, at which 50% of the data is above the value and the other 50% is below. There are several advantages to using the median: it reduces the impact of outlying data and skewed data, especially when there are only a few data points; it is often a better indicator of where the true “middle” performance lies than the mean, although is still susceptible to extreme outliers. The median value will be the CSC benchmark with three performance zones developed around it:

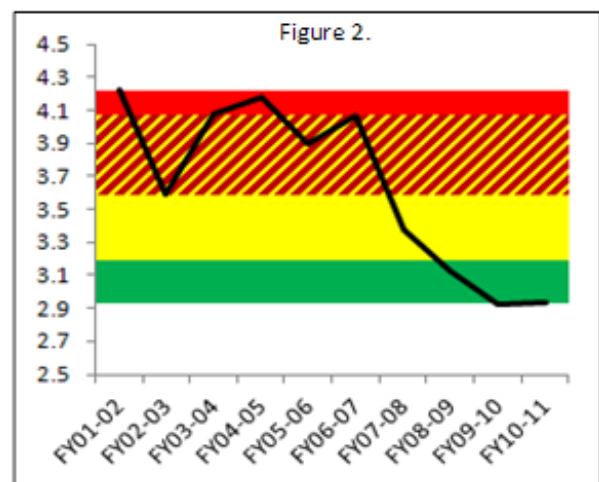

- Usual performance band - covers the middle 50% of observed data (25th up to the 75th percentile). Data outside this band are considered either higher or lower than usual. For ease of interpretation, usual performance is denoted by the colours yellow (usual) and hatched yellow (usual-caution);
- Better performance than usual - will either represent the lowest or highest 25% of the data. This performance zone is green;
- Worse performance than usual - will either represent the lowest or highest 25% of the data. The performance zone is red.

Whether performance outside of the usual band will be considered worse or better depends on the indicator being examined.

In the case of the percentage of initial assessments completed on time, the upper-most band indicates higher/better performance than usual (i.e., more assessments completed); whereas in the case of rate of violent institutional incidents, the lower band indicates better than usual performance (i.e., fewer institutional incidents).

It is important to note that the upper and lower performance zones are based on annual national rates and percentages. Regional and site results may actually fall outside the performance bands at the annual national levels (because the upper and lower bands have been truncated to coincide with the highest and lowest annual national rate or percentage for ease of presentation).

Forecasting Techniques for Fiscal Year End 12-13

Several forecasting techniques were examined in order to estimate values of indicators in coming years. Of all of the methods examined, the most reliable was chosen for this exercise and is used with all of the indicators. The estimates for the coming year's fiscal end (i.e., the end of FY 12-13), are averages of the past 18 months performance (i.e., the period starts at April 1, 2010 and ends September 30, 2011 for each of the indicators). Using this technique assumes the coming fiscal year will be similar to the past 18 months.

Types of Data

Two types of data have been used for the RPP:

1. Percentage – the number of individuals in a population with a given characteristic relative to the total number of individuals in a population multiplied by 100. This value can range from 0% to 100%

OR

2. Rate per 100 offender person years (OPYs) – the total number of events in a given period of time divided by the total time at risk for a given population (OPY). The rate is multiplied by 100 to establish context in relation of offender populations. In this document, rate always refers to rate per 100 OPY.

This indicator adjusts for time-at-risk which enables more meaningful comparisons of performance results across variable periods of time. Events are expressed over the total number of years that offenders are ‘at-risk’ for the event during any given period of time.

For example an annual rate of non-natural deaths in custody of 0.35 means that if 100 offenders were followed for the period of one year we would expect 0.35 non-natural deaths. We can also multiply this rate by 10 if lower rates are present. The same example could then be expressed as “we would expect 3.5 non-natural deaths in custody, if 1000 offenders were followed for a period of one year.”
